ANNOUNCEMENTS

With any luck, this issue will be done in time for Dixiecon (well, they don't have a lot for me to do at work these days...). I've printed up a bunch of these as samples so that I can get some new blood and perhaps fill some of the game openings. If you like what you see, consider subscribing and perhaps playing in a game or becoming a standby player.

From last issue, one person expressed interest in Brittania and another in Merchant Of Venus. If one or two more step forward, I will start a waiting list.

Note that Jack will run only 1-2 of the above games (whichever ones fill first). I'd like to offer something besides boring old gunboat...

STANDBY PLAYERS

NAME (Which game?): Bob Acheson (any), Mark Strouthes (FC and Dune), Michael Lowrey (any but FC), Marc Peters (any), Brad Wilson (any but Dune), and Tom Johnston (any).

Four free issues for finishing a position. You stay on the standby list until you receive a position or NMR. You will also earn my undieing gratitude for two months.

Be a pal—Become a standby player. Or sign up for a game...

It looks like we have a few more people creeping onto the list, but I would like to see a few new faces to the list.

CONTRETEMPS II

By Tom Swider (1991)

This is a variant which combines Robert Sacks' Active Neutrals variant with 1914 (Brazil's version of Diplomacy).

- 1) North Africa becomes a 35th supply center. Victory criterion becomes 19 supply centers.
- 2) All "neutral" supply centers are treated as separate countries at the start of the game.

They are controlled by the following major powers:

Austria:	A Belgium, F Norway
England:	A Greece, F North Africa
France:	A Rumania, A Sweden
Germany:	A Bulgaria, F Tunis
Italy:	A Holland, F Portugal
Russia:	A Serbia
Turkey:	A Denmark, A Spain

- 3) Neutrals claim supply centers for themselves and may build if entitled to build. In the unlikely event that an active neutral wins the game or shares in a draw, credit goes to the player controlling the neutral.

DIPLOWINN

By Norman Nathan (1974)

DIPLOWINN stands for "Diplomacy Intended to Probably Leave an Outright Win by Nineteen-Nine". In Winter 1905, the number of units on the board is adjusted to be one less than the number of Supply Centers controlled by each country. In the next winter, this becomes two less, and so on. The Victory Criterion is control of 18 SC's (or sole survivor).

Example: You are a six center Germany and it is W'04. If you gain one center in 1905, you would control 7 ACTUAL centers - 1 (for the W'05 rules adjustment) = 6 net. Thus, you needed to capture a center just to stay even. If you stayed at 6 SC, you would be forced to make a removal.

Some of the content for this issue is being pushed back until a later time. This is so that this issue can fit the one ounce and under limit. Without either subxyn this time around, it doesn't make sense to push it. In the near future, COMRADES IN ARMS may continue in a condensed form until my career and money situation stabilizes.

One Small Voice

More Bad Times

From Kirk Carroll: Hopefully things have been going better for you. Who knows? When one door closes, another one usually opens up. And believe me, things could always be worse. Life can really suck the big red apple sometimes but you just have to go with it. I know I'm at the bottom of the wheel right now in Lady Fortuna's spin, but I also know it should be back on the upswing soon. I don't know what I'm going to do at the moment but things will work out, as they will with you.

Anyway, if you know someone who wants to buy a house with rotting wood in Florida, let me know. I'll give them a very good deal.

Thanks to Kirk and to others who have expressed their best wishes for my career plans. I have a MIA on my interview with Clark Ladner (after two follow up calls, I don't hound any more—never beg for a job) and just had an interview with Zallie Supermarkets (ShopRite) for a Systems Co-ordinator position. There seems to be a good fit between my skills and the position, and expect to hear back from them by the end of next week.

Power Word Processing also has an informal client who manages a few auto dealerships that likes what I do, pays me the money I'm asking for and may want to purchase training and have a WordPerfect Document System designed for their company. I've also completed my first version of a business plan and should be ready to go public within three months.

I hope you can sell your house. Perhaps you can get some people to take a look at it if you or a representative can put in a bid for DipCon '93, to be held at your home. Any pet alligators?

Move It Yourself, Lady

From Brad Wilson: Your response to the Continuing Ed director was completely appropriate. I usually refuse such request at my office as well unless the person asking is especially nice and/or I'm in a really good mood.

Brad is referring to my refusing to do physical labor in the office when appropriate help could have been arranged. Well, when a temp quits because she's expected to make coffee (not part of her job duties) and put up with no direction/training from her employer, I would say things have run amok. I'm glad to see more people stick to their guns on the job.

Cochise Wins Scavenger Hunt

Out of two entries, Steve Courtemanche beat Robert Acheson by submitting four of the scavenger hunt items: a postcard from San Francisco other than the bridge, a photo of the Courtemanche house, a newspaper article written by Brad Wilson and a sample of "Golden Age Press". Bob submitted a menu which listed grits, THE CANADIAN DIPLOMAT #1 & a chilli recipe.

In fact, this makes Bob the most "losingest" contest person in COMRADES IN ARMS (he came in last in a field of two, and also was eliminated from the Hagggle game). Considering he also lost the most games in CHEESECAKE, this makes Mr. Acheson the biggest loser in the hobby. Well, we still like you anyway.

Michael Doesn't Live Here Anymore

Ages ago, Kathy Caruso wrote a press series about me as a little kid enjoying The Brady Bunch program. The other day, I heard that Robert Reed (Mr. Brady) died of AIDS. Goodbye childhood.

RUSSIA TO CHINA: Oh, well. So much for trying to negotiate.

SOUTH AFRICA TO PAN-ARAB LEAGUE: Are you out there? Or are you laying low to use terrorist attacks on me? Better not blow up one of my jet liners or I'll have to impose economic sanctions on you. Ooh ooh ooh.

BRAZIL-USA: Were you nice to me Marc? I was nice to you.

LITTLE TOMMIE SWIDER TO MA(R)C THE KNIFE: Gee, that wasn't very nice of you. You get an 'F' in Citizenship and Socialization.

BRAZIL-SOUTH AFRICA: Living up to our nickname, Mr. Bluster? No, sorry but we won't let you ruin this game. Where's your partner in crime, Drip "Never met a nuke I didn't want build" Anderson? Think you can mess up this game alone. It's a big job but someone's got a do it.

BRAZIL-CHINA: Some toady--going off on a wild Russian chase.

BRAZIL-AUSTRALIA: Nice, Aussie, nice. Look at all of the centers in Africa--wouldn't you want some?

MARK TO TOM: I keep wanting to keep my nukes, but the evil in me seems to notice a sweet little use for them that changes my mind. I just hope nobody else gets the idea to use them on me....

BRAZIL TO UNITED STATES: Well, you did want me to use my nukes, didn't you?

LITTLE TOMMIE SWIDER TO PUPPY POISONED PEN: Guess I should give you this after we play Bridge. Sorry that this is a real adjudication, but I have to admit that David pulled this off rather nicely.

Game Notes:

- 1) Harkonnen has only 13 spice balance (4 should have been subtracted rather than added).
- 2) Card 4 from the auction gets shuffled back into the draw pile so Atriedes doesn't automatically know what the first card was.
- 3) Fremen must tell me where he would like to ride the worm when submitting his bids. At that point, I will reveal the rest of the spice blow.
- 4) Note that there are four eligible bidders (Harkonnen and Emperor have full hands).
- 5) Also note that you may only make one shipment and one onboard move per turn. Nobody could move 3 this turn since Ornithopters weren't controlled by anybody.

Press:

GUILD TO HARKONNEN: Aw, did wittle Harkie have a problem with the big bad stormie?? Too, too, TOO bad, Rodger, were those all your tokens? So sorry, NOT! (Yuck, yuck, yuck.)

GUILD TO GM: So what did I get on the Gloat Meter? Boy that felt good!

LITTLE TOMMIE SWIDER TO FLAPMAR TUEK: At least a seven. For real gloating, you better see Brad.

ATREIDES TO HARKONNEN: Looks like BG paved a new road for us—one that leads right into Carthag and Arrakeen.

ATREIDES TO BENE GESSERIT: That was sneaky, low down, diabolical and just plain mean. I like that in a person.
